Ed Lee to head Carmel Valley Property Owners Association

Edwin B. Lee of Robinson Canyon Road was elected president of the Carmel Valley Property Owners Association last week, replacing outgoing president Roy Kaminske.

Also receiving unaminous approval to serve with Lee were the following new officers: George Lockwood, vice president; Constance B. Smith, secretary; Stephen Thigpen, treasurer; and the following directors: Curtis Pringle, George Sackman, Robert Steinmetz, Barbara Ziegenbein, Stanley Johnson, John Dowdakin, William Rusher, Fred Pomeroy and Frank Bresk.

The annual election meeting, held at Tularcitos School, was a sentimental gathering, with many charter members and past presidents of the CVPOA in attendance.

On hand from the founding meeting, held April 21, 1949 at Holman's Guest Ranch, were charter president William Wood, vice president Jeanette Ayres, treasurer E.J. Dawley, and directors Frances Andrews Hobgood and John Caldwell.

One by one the past presidents were called forward and pinned with a white carnation by Nancy Strathmeyer: first Bill Wood, then Gen. Dawley (1950), David Hoisington (1952), Paul Jones (1954), Ed Haber (1955), John Sigourney (1963), St. E.P. Tyner (1965), Rex Pryer (1966), Emil Hansen (1968) and Kaminske.

Other past presidents who were invited but were unable to attend were J.L. Underhill, Harold Sand, L.W. Klene, Dudley Swim, Robert O. Bare, Grant Fletcher, James L. May, Jack Uzzell, George Brown, C.L. Underwood and Ruth Dodds.

ISSUES AREN'T ALWAYS SERIOUS when the Carmel Valley Property Owners Association meets. Everyone joined in the good-natured laughter as Roy Kaminske stepped aside to let Nancy Strathmeyer pin a carnation corsage on Frances Andrews Hobgood, one of the first directors of the CVPOA.

MR. AND MRS. FRANK PORTER

MR. AND MRS. FRANK PORTER . . . .

THE INDOMITABLE FAMILY

By Pat Griffith

Through the years, their names have been synonomous with Carmel Valley. The Porters -- Frank and Jet.

They know every knoll and grassy meadow, every wooded lot along the Carmel River and every sweeping panorama that has transformed tourists into residents for the past 40 years.

Vast physical changes have come to Carmel Valley since the Porters bought 600 acres of wooded hillside from Del Monte Properties in 1926 and renamed it Robles del Rio, "oaks on the river."

Many of the changes have been guided by the Porters themselves, as slowly, carefully, they developed one vast chunk after another of the peaceful Valley that had lured them like an irrestible magnet from their original home in Salinas.

"I have always wanted to live at the end of the road, where people who came in nearby would be artistic and cultured," Mrs. Porter said last week. "And you know, that has been true of the Valley from the very beginning. With one or two exceptions, the people who have come in have always fit right in. In fact, the most beautiful part of the Valley has been the people who've come in."

People were few and far between when the Porters first became landowners in the Valley. There was no Village and only one other cabin besides their own among the oaks and dense underbrush.

At first the Porters and their children, Paul and Peggy, just came on weekends, winding along the tortuous, ungraded pretzel of a road that was their tenuous link between Salinas and Carmel Valley.

(Years later, in the World War II era, residents always referred to Laureles Grade as "the little Burma Road," and Jet Porter admits "I never thought I'd live long enough to see it fixed up.")

Roadrunners darting around bends made the trip even more arduous, and once the Porters were stopped abruptly by a baby wildcat lying in the road.

"Frank took the laces out of his boots, and tied the kitten's paws," Mrs. Porter recalls. "Then we took him to the animal shelter in Salinas."

Their Robles cabin grew like Topsy, until it became a year-round home with four bedrooms, four baths and an unbroken vista of trees, hayfields and rolling hills.

Below their house the Carmel River plunged downstream in year-round, pre-dam profusion.

LOTS OF WILD LIFE

Wild boar nosed their way past the Porters' front door, and skunks were as abundant as the deer nibbling on tender green shoots.

Friends of the Porters who visited them in this unspoiled rural paradise decided they, too, would like a cabin in Robles, and the building began.

Four-horse teams carved out roads that swirled around the hills like serpentine. The Porters sold off property a few acres at a time, and the Robles colony grew.

In 1932 they built Robles del Rio Club, now the Lodge, with its commanding hilltop view of Carmel Valley. This was done to entice additional property owners to the area.

The club offered a heated 30' by 60' tiled pool (built with borrowed money," Mrs. Porter noted smilingly) and a "tricky" nine hole golf course.

At that time the Porters were offering lots in Robles for "$150 and up", and a year later, in April 1933 they advertised 75' by 150' building sites along the Carmel River for $90, "sold on easy terms, with or without membership to Robles del Rio Club."

One lot which was first purchased for $150 during that time was resold last year, still undeveloped, for $8,950.

If one could wax nostalgic about a period of national depression and hardship, the 1930's were good years in Carmel Valley.

Jet Porter has vivid memories of sights and sounds now long since gone ... the clop-clopping of the old Tassajara Stage which came twice a week from Salinas, and changed horses at Camp Steffani and again at Jamseburg ... the rhythmic jingle of cowbells as cattle were moved up and down the Valley ... vast stretches of hayfields and meadows dappled with wildflowers carpeting the Valley floor from hillside to hillside ... hayrides and early morning horseback rides that ended with a hearty country breakfast sizzling on an outdoor grill ... the smart pace of the Tally Ho's which brought Del Monte Lodge guests out to Los Laureles Lodge for lunch and sunshine and country air.

The years were good, and Mrs. Porter has a scrapbook of clippings to prove it. But she has no regrets that this simpler, more rustic era has passed.

"I don't look back," she said firmly. "I just live in the present. Everything serves its purpose. It was beautiful in Robles when we were there, when we had the river year round and had all the wild flowers and could fish all the time.

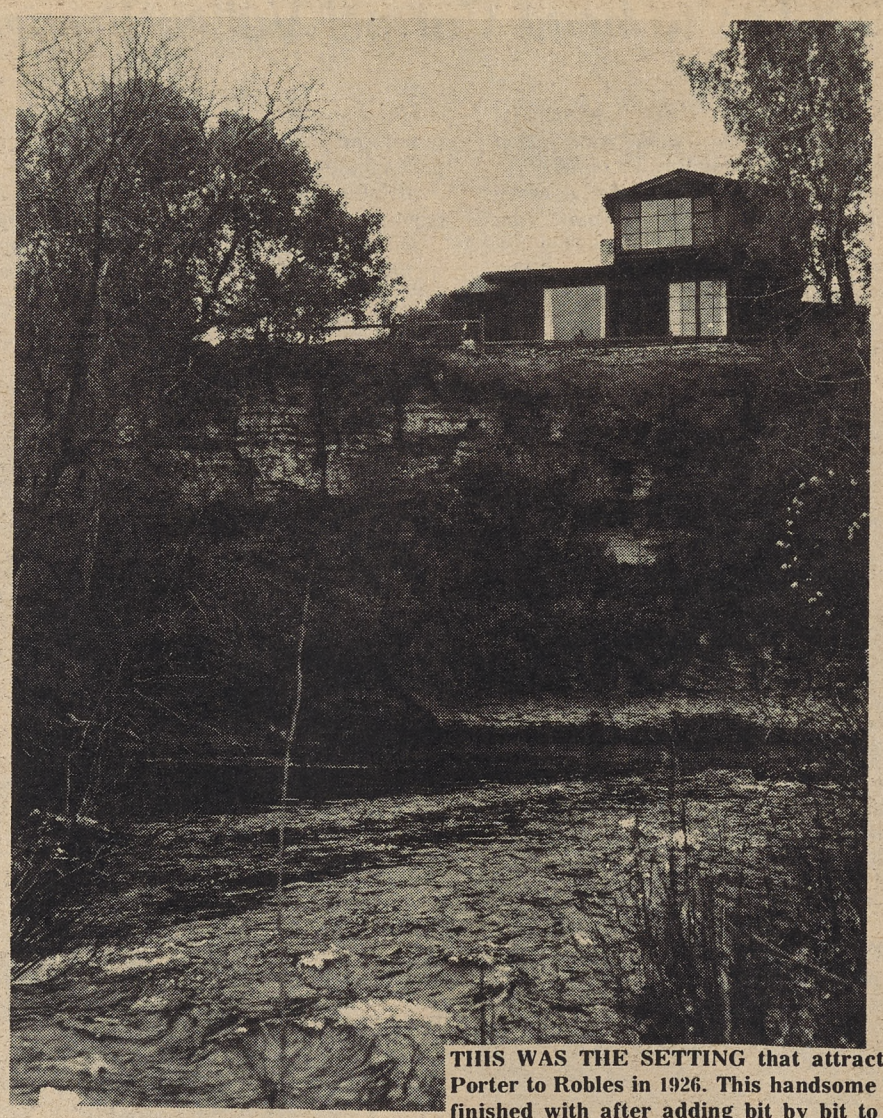

"No, I certainly have no regrets at all. You'll find if you just expect the best to happen as you go along, it probably will. This is just paradise as far as we're concerned. It always has been."

THE VILLAGE APPEARS

In 1932, Porter paid $32,000 for the 1,000 acre Marian Hollins' ranch, which included the great sweep from the entrance to Robles across the Valley to the hills on the north side -- the area in which the Village is now located.

This, too, was sold off a few acres at a time, and more houses and, eventually, a few stores appeared.

"If we had had enough money, we would have built the

THIS WAS THE SETTING that attracted Frank and Jet Porter to Robles in 1926. This handsome house is what they finished with after adding bit by bit to the original cabin overlooking the Carmel River. They lived here until 1958, when they built their present home on Terrace Way, near another major Porter development, Rancho del Monte Country Club. In the early days around this house, Mrs. Porter remembers the wild boar that used to dig in her garden "and the skunks that were everywhere." That was also a time when the river ran full and clear year-round, and there were always plenty of fish to catch. Mrs. Betty O'Neal now lives in this house, on Salsipuedes.

...Y WHO DEVELOPED BEAUTIFUL CARMEL VALLEY

commercial area ourselves," Mrs. Porter said. "We would have had it tightly controlled, something along the lines of Carmel. But we just couldn't do it."

Her husband ticked off what some parcels sold for then, and what they would bring today.

"We sold the five acres across from the Bank of America for $1750. You could get $140,000 for it now. That corner by Ford Road went for $1350. It was less because it was only 4½ acres and a little swampy. When it was sold for the new shopping center, the cost was $225,000."

After World War II, the Porters entered another spurt of development. In 1946 the developed 30 acres in Valle Vista, and the following year started subdividing the 1,000 acre Rancho Del Monte property. They installed a water system and built a bridge from Boronda Road across the river to Garzas Canyon. Porter built Rancho Del Monte Country Club in 1949.

They moved into their present home on Terrace Way, about a block's distance from the country club, in 1952. Smaller than their home in Robles, it offers the privacy and tranquility they have always appreciated plus a spectacular three-way view of the Valley.

Then in 1955 attention was focused on Rancho Canada, where Porter owned another 1,000 acres. He developed 100 acres for homes, and sold the remaining 900 acres as a ranch. (The rock quarry that used to supply most of the chalk rock for buildings around here is located on this property.)

TIERRA GRANDE

The Tierra Grande development, begun in 1962, crowns Porter's achievements in the Valley.

"That's the end of it. It's the last development we'll ever do," Mrs. Porter said flatly. Both she and her husband believe that the new 2½ acre-minimum building site requirement will push the cost of hillside property still higher and make future developments economically out of reach.

Although proud of the contoured layout of Tierra Grande, Porter is sensitive about one thing -- the entrance road which angles up the steep hillside across from the Mid-Valley Shopping Center.

"We've been criticized for that cut. Well, I blame the County," he said heatedly. "We brought in another subdivider there who had that road laid out and it had all been approved by the County. If I had gone up the other way, through the canyon, it would have meant a delay of six months to a year in construction. So since the County had approved this road, we went ahead with it.

"But if I had it to do over again," he said more softly, "I'd take the loss in time and put the road up the canyon. As it was, we bought trees to plant along there and sprayed the cuts with seeds. It cost us over $2,000.

The Porters strongly disagree with meterologist Robert Read and others who have warned that the Valley may have a serious smog problem if there is a substantial increase in population.

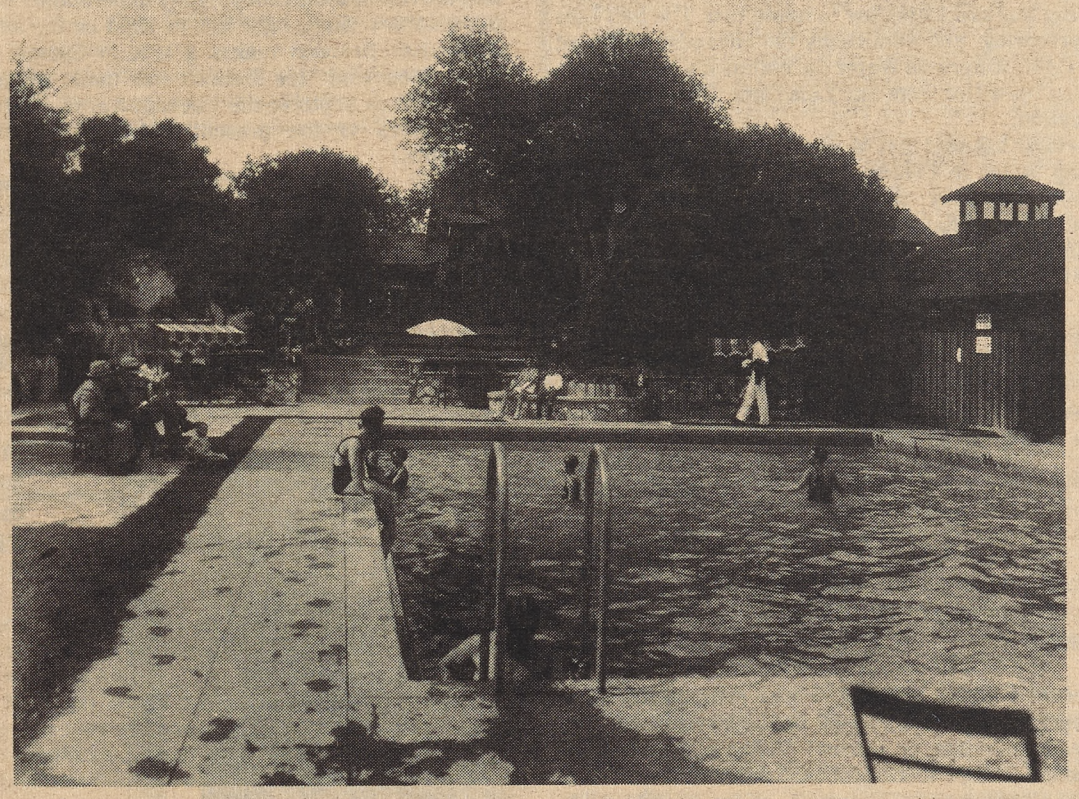

"This place will never be overpopulated," Mrs. Porter said. "That's nonsense. In fact I think we need more population to take care of the little stores we have here now."

"Oh, eventually it will be all built up," her husband shrugged. "But by then they will have figured out a way to get rid of smog. Or they'll have different cars and there won't be any smog."

Mrs. Porter walked out onto the broad, sheltered patio of their home and watched the shadows deepen in the Garzas and along the wooded ridges. "I just love it at sunset," she said.

She breathed deeply, and her face glowed.

"It's the silence that's so beautiful here."

ROBLES DEL RIO LODGE was built by Frank Porter in 1932 to attract more residents to the oak-covered acres around it. This picture was taken in 1939, the year the Lodge was purchased by its present owner, William D. Wood. The tiled pool, stone walls and redwood buildings shown in this scene are the same today. However, the big oak tree encircled with a bench in the center of the picture is gone. And it has been a while since male guests have worn full one-piece bathing suits, like the gentleman sitting on the side of the pool.

It helps to know Spanish if you live in Robles del Rio. When its winding roads were laid out in the late 1920's, they were all given colorful names by Pete Zabala, a member of an old Spanish family in this area.

TO THE EDITOR

To the Editor:

The Overworked Carmel River

The Carmel Valley is rapidly approaching its final demise, and the pending damsites in the Cachagua and upper Carmel Valley should be the concern of all Carmel Valley residents, and not only the Cachagua people, who have built their homes and individual and unique way of life in that beautiful valley. It should be common knowledge that any more dams in this much over-worked Carmel River would lower the water table in the Carmel Valley to the extent that all vegetation along the river banks would die and the result would be the need to eventually cement the entire river. No trees would be there to hold the banks and help control flooding. Why should one river have three and possibly four dams when there are several rivers to tap from for Peninsula water, the Big Sur and Little Sur to name two. The San Luis Dam is overflowing, and admittedly the cheapest source of water. The Calif.-American Water Co. claims it would take 15 years to bring the water from San Luis Dam. Ridiculous, and pure fabrication.

Our supervisor has said that he would support the cheapest way to bring water to Peninsula residents. Commendable political talk but very short sighted, considering the destruction of one of natures most beautiful areas. I don't think, in this case, that money should be the basis for choosing to build more dams in the Carmel River.

Low-rise dams for the controlling of flooding, and still allow percolation of water to not lower the water table ... in fact, improve it, and water for the peninsula residents to be brought from one of the above mentioned sources, is, to my way of thinking, the only practical solution to preserving our valley plus supplying its needs.

Respectfully,
J.N. SWANSON

To the Editor:

At the recent CVPOA meeting, I was disappointed that neither Assemblyman Bob Wood or Supervisor Willard Branson made mention of Carmel Valley's most recent serious problem. I refer to the proposed dams on the Carmel River by the Cal-American Water Co. at the Klondike site near the Village and the Syndicate Camp site; the latter inundating Cachuagua Valley.

As a Carmel businessman over 20 years; a Valley resident and a lover of and property owner in Cachuagua, I find it hard to believe the small number of people who know where Los Padres Dam is located and that it is their principal source of water.

This "to be created recreation area" would mean increased traffic and pollution, widened roads, and adverse environmental and ecological changes.

Carmel River is not large enough to meet the future water needs of the Monterey Peninsula. Los Padres Dam is beautiful when full; however in the fall season and drought years it is an eyesore and a mudhole; and so would be these proposed dams.

If San Francisco could go to the Sierras because of water shortage, then I feel this water company can go either to the Sur area or to the San Luis Reservoir; especially with modern equipment and knowledge.

They should go not only for the reason of water shortage but also because of the dictates of the people.

Editor:

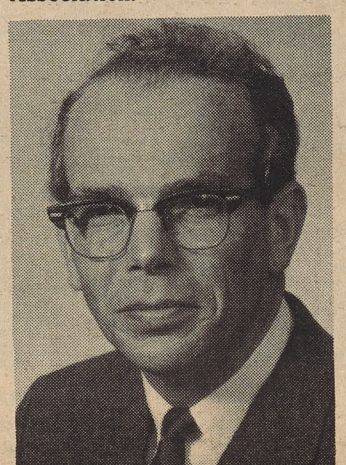

I wonder just why the Carmel Valley Outlook did not alert the Community of Carmel Valley and the Cachagua Valley of the Cachagua Dam proposal?

It seems to me there could have been an editorial on this subject. Three weeks have past, and there has been just one small article on the last page in the bottom right hand corner in your 21st edition. Iam a subscriber to your local paper, and in this respect I feel I am supporting your paper, as so many others in this community do. This is our only source of news. So why wasn't the community supported by the Carmel Valley Outlook by having the facts.

(Editor's Note: Release of the news on the plan for a new dam in the Cachagua area was made under circumstances that the Outlook does not yet fully understand - nor do a great many others. More light will be shed on the situation when Supervisor Branson makes a talk in Carmel Valley next week. Meanwhile the Outlook has made plans to conduct interviews in depth in the Cachagua area, and to report all alternatives to the present proposals as they become available.)

RICHARD FRENCH

Richard French joins C.V. real estate firm

The association of Richard S. French in the field of real estate sales and management has been announced by Charles M. Hoisington, Carmel Valley realtor. French will deal with properties throughout the Peninsula region, with special attention to Carmel Valley and outlying areas.

A native of New Hampshire, and a graduate of the University of that state, he has lived in this area for the past 15 years, presently residing in Carmel. He was formerly associated with Hudelson & Myers, plumbing contractors, where he was employed as service manager and office manager.

the Gold Rush era was outlined by State Assemblyman Robert Wood of Greenfield, the guest speaker.

Wood, who was introduced by County Supervisor Willard Branson, said statistics show that every time we gain 100 people in population we lose 28 acres of rural land. At this rate, he said, California is "consuming" 112 acres a day.

"Since 1940 we have lost almost one million acres of prime land, including about 40 percent of the prime fruit and vegetable land," he said.

Wood said there is no way to stop this continuing trend, although, he noted wryly, "For the first time in history it's popular to be against motherhood."

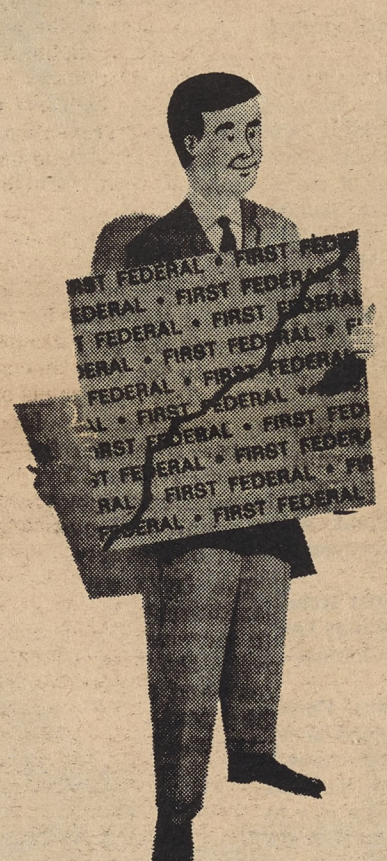

Wood said that the Monterey, Santa Barbara and Sacramento areas are likely to see the greatest population influx in the next few years as the greater Los Angeles and San Francisco areas reach the saturation point.

He urged local and regional planning to meet the problems of pollution and development, and warned that the state won't have enough money "to do all the things we want to in the conservation field."

Wood also said that "maybe someday we can afford a regional sewage system" for communities in the Monterey area. Water needs were are increasing so rapidly, he said, that by the year 2000 it will be necessary to purify sewage water to the point where it can be reused. This is already being done in some parts of the country.

PROPERTY OWNERS WANT BETTER FIRE PROTECTION ...

Mid-Valley may be annexed to Carmel Valley Fire Protection District

By PAT GRIFFITH

Should mid-Carmel Valley from Rancho Fiesta west through La Canada Drive be annexed to the Carmel Valley Fire Protection District?

This question will soon be put before property owners in that area of the Valley as the final step in a year-long effort by the Tierra Grande Property Owners Association to obtain annexation.

At issue, basically, is whether or not people in this area would like a fire station within a five-mile radius of their homes.

If they want this protection, their fire insurance rates will drop sharply, but they will pay additional property taxes.

At present, all of Carmel Valley west of Rancho Fiesta is covered by the State Forestry Division fire station on Carmel Hill, near Community Hospital.

This station, part of the San Benito-Monterey Ranger District is staffed during the winter and spring by Fire Captain Richard Tiller, a 250 or 500 gallon pump truck and an administrative man.

During the peak fire season, usually June 1 to Nov. 30, the station has two fire trucks and eight men on duty.

Their territory includes all the unincorporated areas of Monterey County, including Big Sur, Carmel Highlands, Jacks Peak, Asilomar and Marina in addition to Carmel Valley.

The Carmel Hill station also has a separate contract with Monterey County to provide protection for fire districts 42 and 43 -- Pebble Beach, Monterey Peninsula Country Club, Carmel Woods, Hatton Fields, Mission Fields, Carmel Point, Del Mesa Carmel,Rancho Rio Vista and the Carmel Rancho Shopping Center -- during the non-peak months.

One man and one truck is provided under this contract, but it is not available to go into Carmel Valley or any other neighboring area.

As things now stand, any fire call from the mid-Valley goes to the State Forestry station. They respond with one truck in the winter-spring months or possibly two trucks during summer and fall.

If they need more equipment they may call upon Fire Chief Chip Collins of the Carmel Valley Fire Department. Under mutual assistance agreements, he may send one truck and no more than four men out of his fire district.

During the summer and fall, the Carmel Hill station can ask for additional help from its Carmel Valley Forestry Service station located two miles east of the Village. Four men are on duty here during the peak fire months.

If a call comes from Carmel Valley when the Carmel Hill equipment is out on another fire, the Carmel Valley Fire Department would automatically be contacted.

"But we always have at least one truck here on standby," Tiller explained last week. "The only time this station would be uncovered would be for no more than an hour when two trucks are out on fires at the same time.

"In that case, we'd have a standby truck en route from our station at Corralitos (just north of Watsonville) or Gonzales."

Sometimes during the peak fire season, the State Division of Forestry moves the Carmel Hill crews to the scene of a critical fire elsewhere in the state. At one point last summer, the men battled a major brush fire in Southern California.

When that happens, a standby crew, usually from Coralitos or Gonzales, covers the unincorporated areas of Monterey County.

HIGHEST INSURANCE

What this all means in terms of actual fire protection for the mid-Carmel Valley area is reflected in the fire insurance rates. This area pays the highest premiums (rating 10) set by the Pacific Coast Fire Rating Association.

In contrast, property located within the Carmel Valley Fire Protection District (Russell Ranch to Rancho Fiesta, and hilltop to hilltop) is rated class 6 or 7. This is a difference of 22 to 24 cents per $100 of assessed valuation.

Property owners within the District pay about 65 cents per $100 in taxes for this extra protection.

Russell Stolfi, a professor of modern European history at the Naval Postgraduate School, is spearheading the effort of Tierra Grande homeowners to annex the mid-Valley area to the present Carmel Valley Fire Protection District.

Stolfi argues that at the moment, fire protection for the mid-Valley area varies from "marginal to non-existant."

He sees the time lag as the critical factor, since under the best of circumstances it takes about 15 minutes for a truck from the Carmel Hill station to reach homes in Tierra Grande or Robinson Canyon.

"I have been told by fire experts that the first three to five minutes are critical in a structural fire. If a big truck isn't on the scene within five minutes, it is likely that all anyone will be able to do is to prevent the fire from spreading to adjacent property.

"Face it. If there's a serious fire in a house around here, that house is going to burn to the ground."

If the mid-Valley were to join the present Carmel Valley Fire Protection District, Stolfi forsees these advantages:

1. A fire station would be located within a five-mile radius of homes in the Mid-Valley area.

2. The volunteers needed to man this station would be trained by Chief Collins and his top assistant, Don Laird. All firemen would be personally familiar with the area and round-the-clock coverage would be assured.

3. The new volunteer firemen would be trained in advanced first aid procedures by the American Red Cross, and it is likely the Red Cross would provide an ambulance for the mid-Valley station similar to the one it has given to the fire station in the Village.

4. Fire hydrants would be installed through the district, and fire prevention measures enforced.

5. There would be an end to the confusion on the part of many residents in the area about whom to call in case of fire. (See box on this page.)

6. Fire insurance rates would go down sharply.

Stolfi has been in touch with the three-member board of commissioners of the Carmel Valley Fire District and the Local Agency Formation Commission in Salinas. The approval of both groups is needed to obtain annexation.

"Right now an engineering firm is drawing up the precise meets and bounds of the proposed annexation area," Stolfi said. When that is completed, we will give that information to the fire commissioners along with petitions asking for annexation.

If the commissioners approve of our request, they will pass a resolution asking the Local Agency Formation Commission to call a public hearing on the matter.

Unless there is a counter-petition signed by at least 25 percent of the property owners in the area opposing annexation, the Local Agency Formation Commission can declare the area annexed after a public hearing.

If property owners support annexation, and Stolfi is confident most everyone will, the Local Agency Formation Commission will help organize the new fire station.

Initially, about one acre would be needed for a station to include a two-car garage and an office.

NEW EQUIPMENT

If such a station were established, Collins said it would need to start out with a 1250 gallon pumper truck and a smaller unit. (Collins said the Pacific Fire Rating Bureau doesn't even recognize a 250 gallon pumper, and is currently raising its minimum requirements for a pumper from 500 to 750 gallons.)

Collins also explained that fire trucks are built to specification, and it takes one to one and a half years to get one. They cost around $4000, "but of course they're made to last 20 years or so."

At his station in the Village, Collins has four pieces of fire fighting equipment and two pick-ups, one of which is often dispatched to small fires. The other is used as a second ambulance, and has proved invaluable when there have been multiple injuries in an automobile accident or when a rescue effort must be made over unusually rough or muddy roads.

Obtaining a building and equipment would be the most time-consuming part of setting up a second fire station. Laird, who is in charge of training the 25-man volunteer crew at the Carmel Valley station, said basic training for a volunteer firemen takes about six months. This is a minimum of six hours a month, plus additional training exercises that are scheduled for Saturday afternoons.

Laird puts about 75 percent of his training emphasis on fires in buildings and homes, and 25 percent on grass or brush fires. This is in contrast to the training given Forestry Service personnel, which is, understandably, focused heavily the other way.

During 1969, the Carmel Valley Fire Department responded to 77 fire calls and 145 first aid calls. This compared with 112 fire calls and 119 first aid calls the year before.

But of all telephone calls received at the Carmel Valley station, Collins estimates that about one-third are out of his fire district.

The area presently covered by the Carmel Valley fire department includes property with assessed value of about $10,000,000. Property in the area which may be annexed also has an assessed value of about $10,000,000.

This does not include Carmel Valley Manor, a non-profit corporation, which is located within the proposed extended district.

Even if the mid-Valley area is joined to the Carmel Valley fire district, the State Forestry Service will still have responsibility for brush and timber fires in Carmel Valley. In the event of a brush fire in the proposed new district, the Carmel Valley Fire Department would respond first, but could then turn fire-fighting duties over to the state when the Forestry Service equipment arrived. This would release the Carmel Valley Fire Department to be available for building or other types of fires.

RESIDENTS CONFUSED AS TO WHERE TO REPORT FIRES

If you live in Carmel Valley west of Rancho Fiesta and have always assumed you could call upon the Carmel Valley Fire Department in an emergency, you're not alone.

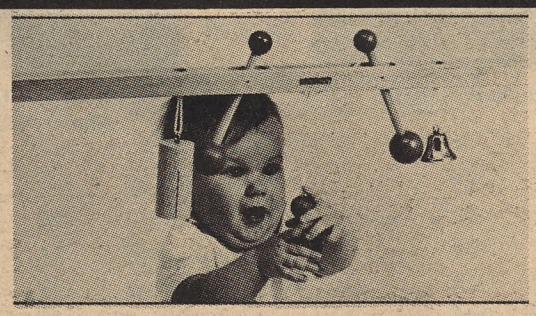

In a quick telephone survey of 12 people living in the mid-Valley last week, three said they'd phone the Carmel Valley Fire Department in case of fire, and one said Carmel.

The other eight knew the right answer -- the State Forestry Division fire station on Carmel Hill, 624-3876.

Telephone stickers showing this number are available free of charge at Steinmetz Pharmacy in the Mid-Valley Shopping Center

Be sure to write this down. The time lost in making an extra phone call could be critical. And remember, if you just dial for the operator, she will immediately ask "where to you live?" If your answer is merely "Carmel Valley," she, too, will put you through to the wrong fire department.

IN THE JARGON of the sport, "It's a whole new ball game" for the Carmel Valley Little League with the precedent-breaking unanimous election of a WOMAN president for the 1970 season. Mrs. Stephen Thigpen with two sons Greg and Steve who have played for two years with the Cubs, a Farm Team managed by her husband, has been one of the League's most dedicated supporters. She has transported players and equipment, worked the refreshment booth, and been in the Cub's rooting section for nearly every game they have played. They busy mother of four and husband Steve who will serve as treasurer make their home on Via Crotalo in Rancho Tierra Grande.

Other board members elected include George Palmer, vice president of the Major League. George who has served a two year term as president will assist in an advisory capacity. Jim Clark is vice president of the Farm Teams and Mrs. Melvin Klein, secretary.

Vince Cal will serve as Equipment Manager, Dick Gayman, Field Superintendent, Kirk Gayman, Head Umpire, Don Draper and Bob Hebert, in charge of Promotion (signs and sponsors), Mrs. Roger Sherman, Head Scorekeeper, Mrs. Mildred Hattan, Publicity, and Merrill Gayman, Player Agent. Mrs. George Palmer and Mrs. Don Draper will head the Snack Booth.

There were 150 adults contacted via an all-out telephone campaign and invited to attend this first all important organizational meeting. Twenty five were in attendance emphasizing the need for volunteers for the spring recreation program which usually boasts a registration of 125 boys who make up the eight teams.

Coaches and managers signed to date are Richard McKenzie, Hap Thystrup, Bill Conlan, Roger Sherman, Jim Clark, Gordon Harlander, Sal Ocampo, Garry Moore, Richard Crane, Lin Egli, Leon Mink and Stephen Thigpen. Mrs. Barbara Ascarate whose "Hornets" won the Farm Team pennant last year will be returning for her second season as manager. With Kaye and Barbara in key positions it looks like EVERY day will be "Ladies Day" at the Carmel Valley Little League Field on Paso Hondo.

Exciting news on the enlargement of the field was announced last week when the retiring president, George Palmer, completed a lease agreement with Mrs. Geniveve de Dampierre for a additional 500 feet behind the existing score board. The new land bring the Little League property to approximately eight acres and work on the proposed second field will begin in the near future. The contract is on a two year basis with a dollar per year charged by their benefactress.

Don Ostergard, Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Co., became chairman of the Monterey district council of the Boy Scouts of America at a meeting last Thursday.

He succeeds Roger Poyner who remains on the council as finance chairman. The change of command ceremony was conducted by RAdm Robert McNitt, Commandant of the Naval Post Graduate School, who hosted the breakfast meeting.

Reports given by chairmen of council committees showed that Scouting has made tremendous strides during the past year in the Peninsula district which includes Monterey, Pacific Grove, Carmel, Carmel Valley, Del Rey Oaks, Seaside, Fort Ord and Marina.

During the year there were over 2800 boys enrolled in 75 Scout units. Goal for 1970 is 77 units.

Plans for Boy Scout Week, Feb. 7 to 13 were discussed. Many units in the area are preparing window displays which will be placed in downtown stores.

Greatest emphasis locally and nationally will be on the slogan "America's Manpower Begins with Boypower."

The week has also been designated "BIG E WEEK" in recognition of the tremendous expansion of the Explorer's program. New posts that recently have been formed in the Peninsula District includes police units for Seaside youth, sponsored by the Seaside Police Department and the Monterey County Sheriff's office. In these programs the Explorers actually undergo rookie police training and many plan at this time to take up law enforcement as an occupation.

The Explorer program is geared to the desires and needs of the older youth. New posts are organized when there is sufficient interest such as the Geology post in Pacific Grove which recently was organized.

A survey will be undertaken in February at high schools in the district to determine special interests of students and the organization of special Explorer posts to provide such programs. Young ladies also are eligible for Explorer membership.

The annual district Recognition Dinner, when awards are presented to adults who have made outstanding contributions to local Scouting, will be Monday, March 16, at 7 p.m. in Stilwell Hall, Fort Ord. More than 500 Scouts and adult leaders are expected.

Dick Vreeland, Alena Johnston featured in 'The 7 Year Itch'

"The Seven Year Itch" which opens Friday at the Studio Theatre-Restaurant offers comedian Dick Vreeland a vehicle worthy of the talents he demonstrated in "The Odd Couple" and "Send Me No Flowers." As Richard Sherman, temporarily a bachelor while his wife escapes a New York summer, Vreeland has full opportunity to show why George Axelrod's comedy ran 1,141 performances on Broadway.

To the Girl Upstairs, the personification of temptation, Alena Johnston brings talent sharpened by movie roles in "Funny Girl" and "The Ambushers" and beauty recognized by Steve Crouch in selecting her for his Gallery in the Herald.

Edie Donahoe (Helen Sherman) returns to the Studio after a recent appearance as the giddy debutante of "Black Comedy", while Dennis Weaver (Dr. Brubacker) progresses to eccentric psychiatrist after playing the comic chef of "Don't Drink the Water."

Pete Walters (Tom MacKenzie), imagined by Richard to be pursuing his wife, moves to the Studio from "Light Up the Sky" at the Circle. Amy Lynn Vreeland (Amy) follows in her father's footsteps in her first stage appearance as the Sherman's young daughter.

Populating the hilarious dream sequences based on the hero's fantasies are Toni Hyland (Miss Morris), Sharon Law (Elaine) and Brit Lind (Marie Whatever-Her-Name-Was), each of whom has gained experience on various stages here or elsewhere.

Mary Payne (Voice of the Girl's Conscience) masterminded the light cues of "Black Comedy" in which Paul M. Boczkowski (Voice of Richard's Conscience) played after his role in "Don't Drink the Water."

Under the direction of Bill Asp "The Seven Year Itch" will run Friday, Saturday, and Sunday nights at the Studio to mid-March. Reservations for all performances may be made at 624-1661 or 624-2321.

YOUTH CONCERT SATURDAY BY SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA

The Junior League of the Monterey Peninsula, Inc. and the Monterey County Symphony Orchestra will present free to young people of the Peninsula, the 16th annual Youth Concerts, on Saturday.

Children grades 3 through 8 are invited to attend the 11:00 a.m. concert at the multi-purpose Gymnasium of Monterey Peninsula College which is donating its gym for this performance. Younger children are welcome if accompanied by a parent.

Appearing as a soloist with the orchestra will be Ruth Mirikitani, a high school student from Marina. Ruth earned the honor of performing with the symphony when she was selected first place winner at the Young Artists Auditions held last November.

Marking Beethoven's 200th Anniversary, the program will be his Piano Concerto No. 2, Opus 19 in B Flat Major. "Peter and the Wolf" by Serge Prokofiev, with Bill Lewis as narrator, will conclude the second half of the concert.

Maestro Haymo Taeuber, who will conduct the Monterey County Symphony Orchestra, will introduce and comment upon each work on the program.

'The Crucible', Miller's drama on witchcraft, opens Friday

"The Crucible", Arthur Miller's dramatic play about the Salem witchcraft trials of 1692 opens this Friday at the Circle Theatre, Carmel, as a presentation of the Community Theatre. This exciting play features a 17 member cast, under the direction of Michael Keller.

Milton Hayes plays the rebellious farmer, John Proctor, a man who fights against the loss of his identity. His wife, Elizabeth, accused of being a witch, will be played by Jean McBride. Both Hayes and Miss McBride are 1969 Golden Bough Circle Award winners.

The lies accusing men and women of Salem of being possessed of Lucifer were started by a quartet of evil children. MPC Drama Dept. graduates Mindy Stock has been has been cast as the taunting Abigail, and Kay Walter as the sly servant girl Mercy Lewis. Portraying the naive, lonely Mary Warren is Evelyn Hughes, with Janet Goff in the role of the confused Betty Parris.

Even gentle souls as respected and loved as Rebecca Nurse could not escape the cry of witchcraft. Gloria Wheeler has been cast in this difficult role. Her accusers were the embittered and jealous Ann and Thomas Putnam, to be played by Peggy Heater and Don Reed.

New to the Circle stage is Drew Devendorf in the role of Giles Corey, a comical hero in Salem history, a crank and a nuisance, but a man innocent of witchery who died bravely under stone.

John Doolittle plays Rev. Samuel Parris, a preacher who cuts a villainous path in history. Rev. Parris summons Rev. John Hale, an eager-eyed intellectual from the town of Beverly, to ascertain if witchcraft is present in Salem. Hale, to be portrayed by Robert Heater, arrives to do battle with the Devil himself.

Joyce Malikoff, as Tituba, the slave Rev. Parris has brought to Salem from Barbados, confesses to having compacted with the Devil in one of the most terror-ridden scenes in the play.

The government of Massachusetts sent many weighty magistrates to Salem to hold the famous witch trials. In "The Crucible", Arthur Miller, believing that these judges were dedicated to evil, has symbolized them all in Judge Hathorne, to be played by Jerry Van Steenbergen, and Deputy-Governor Danforth, played by W.H. Scholefield.

The large cast is completed by Ken Barrette in the role of the tailor, Cheever, who suddenly finds himself drunk with power when he becomes Clerk of the Court. Scott Wheeler plays John Willard, the town marshal.

After its opening on Friday, "The Crucible" will play weekends through March 14 on Fridays and Saturdays at 8:30 p.m., and on Sundays at 7:30 p.m. Reservations for all performances are now being accepted by calling 624-2669.

Bicentennial Carnival big weekend event in Monterey

On February 7 and 8 a tradition created during Monterey's early history and carried on by the Monterey Civic Club, will be relived in all its nineteenth century glory. This is the Pre-Lenten festival sponsored by the Monterey Civic Club and known as "Carnes Tolendas" -- Carnival.

As in the last century, the Alcalde of Monterey read a proclamation of the festival to open the season. In keeping with this tradition, on Saturday, at 10:00 a.m. Monterey Mayor Al Madden will read a proclamation on the steps of Colton Hall declaring the Carnes Tolendas festival is open. The public is invited.

That evening Senoras will dress in their gayest, brightest and most beautiful costumes and attend "El Baile de Los Cascarones" at the Naval Postgraduate School (invitation only). A colorful Mariachi band will play for cocktails, followed by dinner, a grand march at 9:00 and dancing to Neil Armstrong's band until 2:00 a.m.

On Sunday from 10 to 5, there will be team roping,hideraces and barrel riding competiton in the arena at the Monterey County Fairgrounds. And in downtown Monterey, an old fashioned parade will begin at 12:30, consisting of horses, wagons, stage coaches, buggies, donkeys (no motorized units) and people in costumes circa 1870. Following the parade, a chicken barbecue will be served at the Fairgrounds. Adults will receive ½ chicken, baked beans, salad, and delicious French bread -- all for $2.50 and children under 12 for $1.50. Your barbecue tickets may be purchased ahead by calling the Fairgroundsor the Bicentennial office. Pony rides will be available for the children, plus cotton candy, peanuts, popcorn and free entertainment. Free admission to the Fairgrounds. Arena events also free to the public.

Anyone wishing to enter the parade or sports events, which include team roping, hide races and barrel racing, please call or write Old Monterey Bicentennial, 539 Hartnell Street, Monterey. Telephone 408-372-1970. The judging will be done by professional judges. Applications for the arena events may also be obtained at the Monterey County Fairgrounds Office. The deadline for parade entries has been extended to Sunday.

Of course, we could mention a third: your savings enjoy the protection of the world's largest bank. So let your money go to work at Bank of America. The pay is good.

4½% Regular Savings
Starting February 1st, your interest will be increased to 4½% computed daily and compounded quarterly. Deposits made by the tenth of each quarter earn interest from the first. Your funds are immediately available. You can put money in. Take it out. Any time, any amount.

5% Investors' Passbook
This is the passbook account that pays you more for leaving your money with us for at least 90 days. The 5% interest is compounded quarterly. You can withdraw interest during the first 10 days of any calendar quarter.

You can also withdraw principal at that time, providing it's been on deposit a full calendar quarter. A 90-day written notice will also release funds. $500 opens an account. Additional deposits are made in $100 amounts or more.

5¾% Certificates of Deposit
We've lowered the entrance requirements and raised the rate from 5% on maturities of one year or longer. These Certificates are issued for $500 or more. Two year Certificates now earn 5¾%.

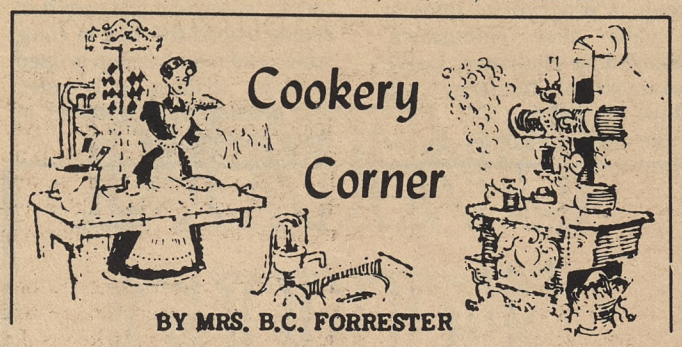

Let us safeguard your money for one year, and we'll pay you 5½% quarterly. These new rates are effective immediately.

7½% Certificates of Deposit
Large deposits—$100,000 or more—now earn 7½% if left with us a year. The interest rates on these Certificates range from 6¼% to 7½% depending on their maturity. These represent an increase of ¾% to 1¼% over previous rates.

If you believe as I do, that French cooking is the highest form of culinary art, then perhaps you will agree also that hunger and scarcity of supplies lead cooks and housewives to use every effort to cook what food they have to the best of their ability and to create appetizing dishes out of very little. Perhaps that is why the French excel in gourmet sauces and various ways of preparing game, fowls and fish. It occurred to me while I was reading an account in the September issue of "History Today", published in England, which gives an intriguing account by Joanna Richardson, of the terrible famine in 1870-71, when Paris was besieged by the Prussian Troops. No news, no food was permitted to enter the city as the Parisians starved, died, but still hoped the provinces would come to their aid. By October 26, it was reported that the animals in the Zoo had been sold to the butchers for meat! The one in the Rue St. Honore sold "elephant, dromedary, bears, pheasant ... which one could procure if he had the money." All the horses and donkeys had been sold as meat before this time, and people caught rats in the gutters for food. But Paris held out until January 28, 1871, when twenty-three young Huns jumped the chains at the Arc de Triomphe, and took possession of the City.

To have held out so long, it is my contention that the bits and pieces of food were made edible by the attention given by the French cook and housekeeper. Invention of better ways of cooking, more economical use, BETTER FLAVOURED SAUCES, were introduced and remain to this day the identification of French cooking.

Few of us who lived through World War Two, will forget the cookbook issued by the English government which was intended to help in the preparation of lentils, cereals and grains as substitutes for meat during the Battle of Britain.

Today, in the United States, many a family would benefit by using meatless dishes occasionally, and concentrating on enjoyable dishes of lentils, beans, rice.

A French recipe for preparing dry vegetables, introduces the subject by saying: "Dry vegetables (beans, lentils, peas, lima beans) are very nourishing, a complete food, low in fat, containing albumen less toxic than albumen of animal origin. On the other hand they are a little less assimilable than meat or bread.

LITTLE PIGS AND LENTILS:

1 cup dried lentils — 1 qt. cold water
2/3 cups minced onions — 1 tbsp. minced parsley
½ clove minced peeled garlic — 3 tbsp. minced celery
2 tsp. salt — ⅛ tsp. pepper
1 tbsp. fat or salad oil — 1 tbsp. flour
½ sausages (8 small) — 2 sliced, peeled med. tomatoes

Wash lentils, pick over; soak overnight in cold water. Drain, reserving liquid. Heat 2 cups of this liquid; add lentils, add onion, parsley, garlic, celery, salt and pepper. Cook covered about 15 min. or until nearly tender. Drain; measure liquid. Add enough reserved liquid or water to make 1¼ cups liquid. Place lentil mixture in 10"x6"x2" BAKING DISH. Melt fat in saucepan; stir in flour; add reserved 1¼ cups liquid; cook until thickened. Pour over lentils. Place sausages in cold skillet; sauce over low heat for 15 min. or until done, turning once or twice, and pouring off fat as it gathers. Place sausages and tomatoes, sprinkled with salt on top of lentils. Bake in moderate oven (350 deg.) for 20 min. Makes 4 or 5 servings.

PARTY LIMA BEANS:

1 lb. dried lima beans — ¼ tsp. pepper
2 tsp. salt — 1-12 oz. can luncheon meat, coarsely grated
2 tsp. salt — ¼ tsp. pepper
6 cups boiling water — ¼ tsp. dry mustard
¼ cup minced onion — ¼ cup molasses

Wash beans; drain. Place in deep kettle; add 2 tsp. salt, and cover with the boiling water. Simmer, uncovered for an hour when beans should be tender. Heat oven to 325 deg. Drain beans, reserving liquid. Arrange beans and grated luncheon meat in 12"x8"x2" baking pan. Combine remaining ingredients with 1½ cups of bean liquid reserved; pour over beans and meat. Bake for 1 hour in 325 deg. oven. Serves 4.

FRENCH BAKED BEANS

3 lbs. limas — 6 bay leaves
2 lbs. veal shoulder — 1 lb. lean pork
1 lb. shank of ham — 12 garlic sausage
3 cloves garlic, minced — 1 tbsp. butter or margarine
peppercorns — salt
1 lb. shoulder of lamb — 1 pint sauterne

Soak beans in water to cover, overnight. Drain and place half of them in large kettle, add half of the seasonings. Cube all the meat and place on top of beans. Put remaining beans over meat and add rest of the seasonings. Pour in wine. Add water to just cover. Simmer for 8 hours. Remove from heat and place in casserole. Brown finely chopped garlic in butter and pour over beans. Place in hot oven (450 deg.) and bake for 30 minutes. 12 to 16 servings.

SPANISH GARBANZOS

1 lb. dried garbanzos — 2 tbsp. olive oil
1 tsp. salt — 1 small onion sliced
1 8 oz. can tomato sauce — 1 clove garlic minced
few whole cloves — salt & pepper to taste

Wash and pick over garbanzos. Put in deep heavy kettle with salt, cover with luke warm water. Soak overnight. Next day add more water if necessary to cover garbanzos. Bring to boil; skim off white foam; repeat 2 or 3 times until water is clear. Then add tomato sauce, oil, onion, garlic and seasonings. Cover and simmer gently for about 2 hours. Do not stir or disturb while cooking, but watch to see if more water is needed to keep garbanzos covered. If the resulting sauce is thinner than you like, drain liquid from the cooked garbanzos, add a little smooth flour and water paste, allowing 1 tsp. of flour for each cup of sauce, and simmer until thickened. For added flavour a sprinkling of herbs, basil, oregano, thyme, marjoram can be added. Then pour sauce back over the beans. Heat thoroughly before serving. 8 servings.

KIWANIANS SEE PICTURES OF AFRICAN SAFARI

Les Biggins, a new resident of Carmel Valley who moved here after retiring from Arabian-American Oil Co., gave an interesting illustrated talk at last week's meeting of the Carmel Valley Kiwanis Club. He spent 17 years in Saudi Arabia.

While working there, in 1967, he made a hunting trip to Africa, but his hunting was done with a camera. He showed pictures of the game reserves where wild life is protected.

Dean Campbell and Alan Holine also reported on their attendance at the Mid-Winter Conference at Los Angeles. The theme was Operation Drug Alert. Holine told of some of the plans that Kiwanis has to combat the drug problem.

THE TOWN CRIER

COUNTY SUPERVISOR Willard Branson will discuss the proposed Cachagua Dam at the meeting of the Kiwanis Club next week at Rippling River Resort. Branson commented last week that while he is convinced that there is a pressing need for more water in this area, he has not yet made up his own mind about the best location for a new dam on the upper Carmel River. In his talk next week, he plans to explain what our water needs are, and why Cachagua is being given prime consideration as a dam site.

CARMEL VALLEY ARTISTS Dick Crispo, Violette Dawson and Barbara Johnson have work displayed in the Sixth Annual Monterey County Painting Competition, part of the opening exhibit of the new Monterey Peninsula Museum of Art.

The museum opened last weekend in a new location, the former Monterey County Building at 559 Pacific Street in Monterey.

Its Balcony Gallery is displaying the Seventh Annual Invitational Photography Show, under the direction of Steve Crouch.

These opening exhibits will be on display through Feb. 26. Museum hours are 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Tuesday through Friday, and 2 to 5 p.m. on weekends.

GLEN MEWHINNEY at the Village Art Center has added several new features to his new session of arts and crafts classes. For the first time there will be free registration classes held the week before regular instruction begins. These will be somewhat abbreviated sessions, with the instructor present to demonstrate what the course will involve and what supplies will be needed. If you are interested at the end of the class, you can register for the full course.

Mewhinney has also lowered fees for most classes in the hope that more Valley residents will be able to attend. The lower fees are somewhat conditional, though. If there aren't enough people signed up to make up the difference, then he may need to charge his usual rates.

And, finally Mewhinney is offering a general craft workshop, which will be supervised but not offer explicit instruction in one field. "Someone could come in to do resin or make paper flowers or party decorations or whatever, and we'll make space for them and be available to give help and ideas," he says.

One new course will be offered starting next month -- Swiss straw creations, taught by Dorothy Hall, who is a designer for Le Jeune, the importers of Swiss straw.

Information on all the courses is available from Mewhinney at the Village Art Center, 659-2881 or 394-5171.

The noted British clergyman, Canon Bryan Green of Birmingham, visited Carmel Valley Monday as the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Jerome Bromberg of Del Mesa Carmel.

Canon Green is a frequent visitor to the United States, and especially California, where he has given many lectures and held week-long missions on college campuses, including Stanford University.

While relaxing here in the Valley on Monday, he commented that the great interest in environmental problems which is sweeping America has not yet reached England.

"For one thing," he said, "we've had stricter laws on pollution, so our problems aren't nearly so acute as yours."

He pointed to the fireplace in the living room and said: "At home, you wouldn't be able to use that. In most cities no one is allowed to burn wood or any fuel that creates smoke. This applies to industries, too."

These drastic measure were taken after the severe smog problem in London in the 1950's when thousands of persons died from respiratory ailments. And according to Canon Green, they have worked well to reduce air pollution to a fraction of what it once was.

One wonders if the time is coming here when a roaring fire on a winter's night will be just a glowing memory.

CARMELO 4-H HOLDS JANUARY MEETING
By Paul Ingram

The Carmelo 4-H Club held its first meeting in 1970 on Thursday, January 22, at 7:30 p.m. A movie was shown and two demonstrations were given. The movie, "Birth of a Foal", showed parts of the whole operation from the first signs of labor to the foal's first steps.

One demonstration, "The Fire Triangle", was given by Bill Ingram. It was about how fire needs three elements, Heat, Fuel, and Air, to burn. The other demonstration was given by Paula Hougland. It was on the different breeds of goats.

These demonstrations were given as an example to the younger 4-Hers who will be giving demonstrations on our demonstration night, coming up in February.

Also a new project, Veterinary Science, is now offered to the members of our club. It is led by Dr. Keith B. Howell of the Carmel Mid-Valley Veterinary Hospital.

COMMUNITY CHAPEL GUILD'S ANNUAL 'BIRTHDAY' MEETING

The Carmel Valley Community Chapel Guild will have their annual "birthday" meeting on Wednesday, February 11. At this meeting members contribute the number of pennies they are years old (of course those who are bashful about disclosing the number of their years can always make the offering a full dollar, and no questions asked!) and the proceeds are used to send birthday and holiday gifts and greetings to the two "adopted" children of the Guild. One is a little Indian girl in Tempe, Arizona and the other a young Korean girl in Seoul.

Mrs. Larry Busick is chairman of arrangements for the birthday festivities, with Mrs. Norman Bundgard as co-chairman and Mrs. James Fitch and Mrs. Vera Stokes assisting.

The meeting will be held in Fellowship Hall of the Chapel on Village Drive at 12:15 p.m. The guest speaker for the day will be Hugh Smith, who is with the Smith Tree Surgeons in Carmel. A resident of Carmel since 1928, Smith is a graduate in forestry from the University of Washington. He is a member of the Monterey Peninsula Planning Commission, a member of the Sierra Club and officer of its local board.

EMERGENCY CALLS

The Carmel Valley Fire Department received just one fire call last week. That came Monday at 2:43 p.m., when a jeep belonging to Frank T. Veach of River Road caught on fire. Damage was limited to a burned wire.

On Saturday afternoon the Fire Department's ambulance took 9-month old Jonathan Zielinski of 75 Lower Circle to Community Hospital as a medical emergency.

Another emergency first aid call was received at 11:13 p.m. Monday night, but when the first aid crew arrived at the scene of the accident at Carmel Valley Road and Laurel Drive, everyone had left.

TULARCITOS PARENTS MEETING ...

School problems aired between parents and board members

Four members of the Carmel school board fielded questions from parents at Tularcitos School last week.

Trustees James Brock, Steven Sassoon, Richard Wilsdon and James Miller discussed a wide range of topics, from the district's drug program to the need for recreational facilities for Valley teenagers.

Attention was generally focused away from grammar school situations until the end of the meeting, when Miller asked how many parents in the audience felt their elementary school children were being challenged by their school work. Only four hands went up among the 50 parents present.

"I think we feel generally that the program could be more demanding," Mrs. Ruth Pryor told the board. "We would like to see papers prepared more thoroughly, or maybe more neatly. Generally we feel the child is given credit for less than could be expected at his grade level.

"Of course," she added, "we were all brought up in an entirely different kind of school than what we have here."

Several parents suggested they thought children should be given more homework, preferably something that would supplement the classroom work rather than dull drill exercises.

"From my standpoint, homework is an indication of what is going on," explained Mrs. George Lockwood. "It keeps you in touch with what's going on in class. Sometimes it's difficult to keep coming to school to find out what is happening."

Another mother, Mrs. Pat De Amaral, said she felt "if we want homework, we should correct it. Why should they (students) spend a lot of time on something they're supposed to know already?"

Earlier in the evening, Sassoon explained to the parents that the Carmel Unified School District ranks in the top 10 to 15 percent of school districts in the state for expenditures per pupil.

He cited three main reasons: smaller than average class size, higher than average salaries for teachers, and "tremendous" transportation costs.

Rev. Brock noted that while Pacific Grove school district includes four square miles, Carmel's covers 600 square miles.

What the school district is doing to combat the use and abuse of drugs was outlined by Miller.

DRUG PROBLEM HERE, TOO

"We have a problem regarding drug abuse, but we're not alone by any means," he said. "It's a very difficult thing to get hold of ... it's not just a matter of control of drugs and education. The home life, change in family relationships, television ... lots of things come into play where the child seeks this as a means of escape or fulfillment."

Miller said the school board has named three citizen's groups to assist them in planning an effective drug program.

One committee, made up primarily of educators, will concentrate on developing appropriate classroom materials on the use and effect of drugs.

"For the most part, the kids know more about it than the teachers," Miller added wryly. "We need a program where they believe it and it's relevant. We've got to come out and level with them."

A second committee of people involved in youth activities will study available leisure time programs, and perhaps suggest new activities.

"If kids have too much spare time, and if there aren't enough interests to make life meaningful, they often turn to drugs," Miller observed.

The third committee will focus on the problems presented by drug misuse. Miller said it is possible a crisis center could be set up, where a child could go for professional help without going through legal procedures. He said this group is studying a program along these lines that is in operation in Salinas.

"We're working on it, and we're looking for help," Miller said. "The schools have to have cooperation from the parents. Parents have to get themselves educated and find out what the risks are."

When asked if there were locker searches at Middle School or Carmel High School, Miller replied:

"We do have at Middle School, mostly because kids leave bananas, sandwiches and sweaty shirts in their lockers for a long time."

He said there are no regular checks of lockers at the high school.

Trustee Wilsdon, an attorney, added that he feels that locker searches "as advocated by Max Rafferty are totally illegal, and I would never support them."

Sassoon disagreed with Wilsdon, arguing that locker searches should be legal "because lockers are the property of the school, and the school should find out if there is traffic in narcotics. The locker is the property of the school and on loan to the student."

Parents in the audience gasped when told that the youngest child found using drugs in school was a nine-year old whose father had a PhD. in child psychology. The father was supplying the boy with drugs and planned to write a paper about the child's reactions.

NEED BETTER COUNSELLING

Rev. Brock suggested that better counselling services should be provided in schools, since statistics show that children using drugs almost always have serious problems at home or at school.

"Maybe we should block out an hour so a child can go talk to a counselor. If he's having family problems, he could go to someone to talk about it."

On the matter of a better leisure time program for teenagers living in Carmel Valley, several parents noted that the Youth Center has planned dances in the past but few young people showed up.

"It seems to some of us," Mrs. Pryor said, "that the impetus for getting a thing really going has to come from youth. If the kids got together and wanted to plan something, I think the board (of the youth center) would be very happy to work with them."

Others suggested that there is a need for a place where teens could dance to records and purchase soft drinks and hamburgers during afternoons and evenings.

Mixed emotions of anticipation and regret are shared by Jean Hofsas, Bernice Huber, Lucile Herbert and Stan Spohn of the Artists Co-op Gallery in Carmel Valley Village. They are looking forward to the specially designed gallery to be built for them in the Valley Hills Shopping Center but regret having to leave their present picturesque site near the Post Office.

SHERIFF'S DEPUTIES WORK ON BURGLARY PROBLEM

A rash of burglaries in Carmel Valley, as well as other communities in the Peninsula area, has sheriff's deputies stumped for the moment, but they are conducting a careful investigation in an effort to apprehend the individual or individuals who have been breaking into homes.

Another break-in in Robles del Rio was reported last week. The home of June L. Gillette, 57 Southbank Road, was entered and two radios, jewelry, a clock and lawn furniture were stolen. Deputies placed the value at $300. The burglars gained entrance by cutting a screen door at the rear of the house, then broke a window to reach through and unlock the door.

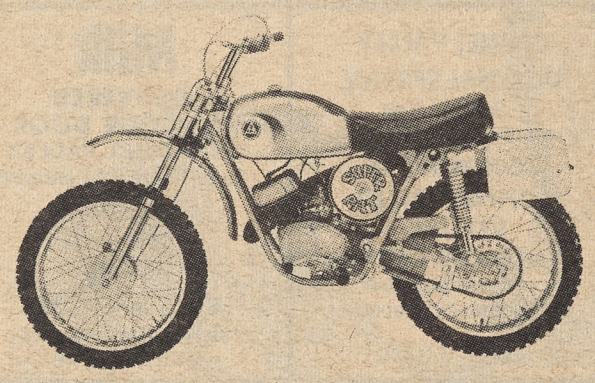

Sheriff's officers suggested that residents report to law enforcement offices any unusual activity, or the presence of strangers whose activities might be suspect. They pointed out that burglaries always are higher during the winter time, because of the longer hours of darkness, when such crimes are more easily committed.
